LET'S ALL GO TO THE LOBBY!

Have you visited City Hall lately? The two-story circa-1950's military barracks that has served the community well as our City Hall has a new feature – an expanded lobby with an elevator! In order to accommodate the new elevator, the old lobby was completely reconstructed as a two story, open-air space. An open-air bridge/walkway above the new lobby now connects the elevator to the existing second floor landing of the Administration and Recreation & Parks Departments.

As part of the lobby reconstruction, a more customer friendly counter now greets visitors entering City Hall. The new counter is wheelchair accessible, and significantly larger than the previous configuration. The new lobby makes extensive use of glass to maximize light into the building and the elevator has the added benefit of providing views of the surrounding parkland and the ocean beyond. The City was able to fund the majority of the project using federal Community Development Block Grant funds and the new elevator helped the City to comply with the objectives of the Americans with Disabilities Act. In addition, City Attorney Carol Lynch of Richards, Watson & Gershon, in honor of her firm's 50th anniversary, generously contributed to the installation of the colorful landscaping surrounding the new entrance to City Hall. Stop by soon and take a short, but fun, ride to the top of City Hall!

LIVING WITH WILDFIRE HAZARDS ON THE PENINSULA

HOW TO PROTECT YOUR FAMILY AND PROPERTY

In response to the disastrous 1991 Oakland Hills fire in the San Francisco Bay Area, the State legislature enacted Assembly Bill 337 (the so-called "Bates bill") in the mid-1990s. The Bates bill required the Director of the California Department of Forestry and Fire Prevention (CDF) to identify and designate Very High Fire Hazard Severity Zones (VHFHSZs) in certain specified counties (including Los Angeles County) by January 1, 1995, and in all remaining California counties by January 1, 1996. As a result of the Bates bill, the entire Palos Verdes Peninsula was designated by the State as a VHFHSZ.

The designation of property within a VHFHSZ imposes certain obligations for property maintenance upon property owners "in any mountainous area, forest-covered land, brush-covered land, grass-covered land, or any land that is covered with flammable material." The Bates bill requires these property owners to:

- Maintain around and adjacent to the dwelling or structure a firebreak made by removing and clearing away, for a distance of not less than 30 feet on each side thereof or to the property line, whichever is nearer, all flammable vegetation or other combustible growth. This requirement does not apply to single specimens of trees, ornamental shrubbery, or similar plants that are used as ground cover, if they do not form a means of rapidly transmitting fire from the native growth to any dwelling or structure.
- Maintain around and adjacent to the occupied dwelling or occupied structure additional fire protection or firebreaks made by removing all brush, flammable vegetation, or combustible growth that is located from 30 feet to 100 feet from the occupied dwelling or occupied structure or to the property line, whichever is nearer, as may be required by the local agency if the local agency finds that, because of extra hazardous conditions, a firebreak of only 30 feet around the occupied dwelling or occupied structure is not sufficient to provide reasonable fire safety. Grass and other vegetation located more than 30 feet from the dwelling or structure and less than 18 inches in height above the ground may be maintained where necessary to stabilize the soil and prevent erosion.

- Remove that portion of any trees that extends within 10 feet of the outlet of any chimney or stovepipe.
- Maintain any tree adjacent to or overhanging any building free of dead or dying wood.

- Maintain the roof of any structure free of leaves, needles, or other dead vegetative growth.
- Provide and maintain at all times a screen over the outlet of every chimney or stovepipe that is attached to any fireplace, stove, or other device that burns any solid or liquid fuel. The screen shall be constructed and installed in accordance with the California Building Standards Code.

It should be noted that the Bates bill provides an exemption for property maintained as habitat for endangered and threatened species, and other sensitive open space and natural areas. In addition, upon sale or transfer of property located within a VHFHSZ, the Bates bill requires disclosure of this fact by the transferor of real property.

In addition to the property maintenance requirements imposed by the Bates bill, there are many "fire wise" construction practices that property owners may consider in new construction and remodeling. These include:

The use of non-combustible material for new or replacement roofs – The City's Building Code requires the use of 'Class A' materials—the highest and most fire-resistant class required in the California Building Code—for all new construction and re-roof permits.

The installation of residential fire sprinklers – The City does not currently require residential sprinkler systems unless there are issues with access for fire-fighting equipment or the distance and/or fire flow from the nearest fire hydrant to the home.

DON'T GET HOOKED BY 'PFISHING!'

"Pishing" is cyber-speak for a fraudulent attempt to obtain your personal and financial information through the Internet. Criminals use a fake email that looks like it came from a legitimate source, such as a bank or an Internet company with which you frequently do business, to deceive you into giving out personal and financial information. Once the scammers get a hold of your information, they use it to clone your identity, empty out your bank accounts or run up charges on your credit cards. Here are some tips on how to avoid becoming a victim:

- Never respond to an email that looks like it came from your bank or any of your credit card issuers no matter how official it appears. Pishing scam emails will tell you that there is some problem with your account and that you have to click on a link to correct that problem. They may threaten to close your account, or report you to the credit bureau, if you do not respond. Don't be reeled in by this scare tactic and don't call the telephone number that appears in the email either. To verify the legitimacy of the email, you can contact your bank or credit card company directly by calling the number that appears on one of your statements. More likely than not, they will tell you the email is a scam.
- Never give your bank account information, credit card numbers, Social Security number, passwords, personal identification numbers (PIN), or date of birth to anyone who asks you for this information by email. No legitimate company will expect you to reveal sensitive information in this manner. Also, no company that issues you a PIN will ever ask you to reveal that PIN to any of their employees.

- Never respond to any offer to buy anything by clicking on the link in the email. Even if the email looks like it comes from your favorite department store or other retailer, it might be a scam. Instead, contact the company or agency cited in the email using a telephone number you know to be genuine, or start a new Internet session and type in the Web address that you know is correct.
- If you have already provided any of your personal information, account numbers, or PINs, immediately contact your banks and credit card companies to make arrangements with them to protect your financial interests. These companies and institutions are familiar with these scams and know what needs to be done.
- If you receive evidence of identity theft, such as unauthorized charges on your credit card bills, or unexplained transactions in your bank account, you should contact one of the three national consumer reporting agencies, ask that a fraud alert be placed on your accounts and obtain copies of your credit reports. You also should visit the Federal Trade Commission's Identity Theft Web site (www.consumer.gov/idtheft) to file a complaint and learn more about how to minimize your risk of damage from identity theft.

The Federal Trade Commission works for consumers to prevent fraudulent, deceptive and unfair business practices in the marketplace and to provide information to help consumers spot, stop, and avoid them. To file a complaint or to get free information on consumer issues, visit www.ftc.gov or call toll-free, 1-877-FTC-HELP (1-877-382-4357); TTY: 1-866-653-4261.

FOLLOWING IN NOAH'S FOOTSTEPS

EMERGENCY PREPAREDNESS FOR YOUR PETS

Imagine there's a knock on your front door late one night. You answer and a Sheriff's deputy informs you that a wildfire is rapidly approaching your neighborhood and to evacuate your home immediately. If you have pets in your household, what do you do? Are you prepared to gather them up quickly and leave, not knowing when you might be able to return to your home?

As we have all witnessed through the media or perhaps experienced ourselves firsthand, natural disasters can occur suddenly or develop over a period of time. While being prepared won't hold back the forces of nature, it can increase the chances that you and your pet will escape unharmed. Making a plan now for your pets may save you from heartache in the future and give you one less thing to worry about should a flood, earthquake, landslide or fire come your way.

GETTING STARTED

Just making the decision to be prepared is the hardest part. Supply lists are available from groups like the Humane Society and other pet rescue groups to help you to determine what you should have on hand for your pets in case disaster strikes. Most items can be easily obtained from the grocery store, a pet store or your veterinarian.

CREATING A PLAN

Once you have your pet disaster kit in place, it's time to come up with an evacuation plan for your animals. This is the greatest challenge that people face when they have animals. Here are some important things to remember as you start working on your animal evacuation plan.

► Have a safe and secure way to transport your animals if you need to evacuate them

When evacuating animals, remember that they will be frightened. Keeping animals securely confined will minimize the chances of you losing your animals. Obtain sturdy carriers and keep them in a location where they can be quickly and easily loaded into your car. Be sure to have identification on all your animals when you evacuate. List cell phone numbers and the phone number where your pets will be housed on temporary tags – your pet's everyday tag with your residence information won't be practical if you must evacuate from that property.

► Don't leave animals behind when you evacuate

Once you evacuate, it is unlikely you will be allowed to return to your home to retrieve any animals left behind. Even if authorities say it will only be for a few hours, take your pets with you. In the past, evacuations have sometimes increased to several days.

► Choose a safe destination

When disasters occur and homes are evacuated, there is no question whether or not evacuation shelters will be opened for the human victims. Animals, on the other hand, are not allowed at human evacuation shelters, primarily for the health and safety of evacuees, which is the shelter staff's first priority. So it's important to identify appropriate evacuation locations for your pets ahead of time. The places you would normally think of, such as animal shelters, kennels and veterinary clinics, will likely fill up quickly following a disaster. Other options to consider are a friend or family member located outside of the disaster area, your breeder, members of your pet fanciers club, a hotel or motel that accepts pets or a grooming facility. Dog owners are especially encouraged to take their dogs to the evacuation spot a couple of times during the year so they are familiar with the location. For larger animals, consider a fairground, a horse race track, a feed store or a horse boarding and riding stable.

► Provide an escape route

If the call to evacuate is sudden and you are unable to locate your pet, you can still increase their chances of survival by opening the gates, doors and windows before you leave, so at least they will have an escape route available. If they're confined, your pet will have no opportunity to make it out on their own.

► What if you're not at home when disaster strikes and your animals are alone?

It's a horrible thought, but it could happen, so you need to have a plan. The first place to start is to talk with neighbors that you know and trust. If they too have animals, discuss what you could do to help one another. A neighborhood pet sitter or dog walker might be another alternative. Here are some of the points you should discuss:

1. Determine what days of the week and times of the day you are away from home most often.
2. Provide a list of all your animals, including their names and any behavioral problems they may have.
3. Have your backup person spend time with your animals so they feel mutually comfortable with one another.
4. Make each other aware of where such things as transport cages, gloves, leashes, halters and lead ropes are kept
5. Exchange phone numbers, such as work numbers, cell phone numbers, pager numbers and your emergency contact person outside the area where messages can be left.
6. Exchange keys or any security codes (remember to only do this with people you trust).
7. Establish a meeting point outside of a likely evacuation area.
8. Discuss what should be done if animals cannot be evacuated - the most likely alternative being to turn them loose.

If you live in an area where wildland fires are your greatest risk, you may want to consider having an emergency scanner that is programmed for local fire response.

PUT YOUR MARK ON OUR AMPHITHEATER

NEW DONATION OPPORTUNITY AT THE POINT VICENTE INTERPRETIVE CENTER

You've heard the exciting plans for expansion of the Point Vicente Interpretive Center. But have you heard about the new amphitheater being installed along the coastal bluffs adjacent to the expanded Interpretive Center? The amphitheater will feature inlaid

P.V. stone, seating for 120 guests, and spectacular views of Catalina and the evening sunset. The amphitheater will provide an incredible site for whale watching, educational lectures and community events.

There are a limited number of 6"x8" bronze plaques available to donors. Each plaque will be vertically mounted on one of six tiers of the new amphitheater. Donors may customize their bronze plaques or dedicate their plaque in honor of a specific loved one, friend, organization, or company. Each space is available for $1500. All proceeds will go towards the fabrication and installation of educational exhibits within the Interpretive Center. The City is a nonprofit government agency and donations may be tax deductible. Please check with your tax advisor. For more information about this limited opportunity, please contact Holly Starr at (310) 544-5264 or send an email to PVICexhibits@RPV.com.

ABALONE COVE BEACH CLEANUP DAY

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 17
AT 9:00 A.M.

Coastal Cleanup Day is about much more than picking up trash. It's a chance for Californians to join people around the world in expressing their respect for our oceans and waterways. It's an opportunity for the community to demonstrate its desire for clean water and healthy marine life. And it's a moment to share with one's neighbors, family, and friends, coming together to accomplish something vital and worthy on behalf of our environment.

The clean up will begin at 9:00 a.m. at Abalone Cove Shoreline Park located at 5907 Palos Verdes Drive South, directly across the street from the Wayfarer's Chapel. The parking lot will open at 8:30 a.m. and parking is free if you arrive before 9:00 a.m.

Wear sturdy shoes and bring sun block, gloves, and a hat. Plastic bags will be provided to hold the trash and recyclables. This event is organized by the Los Serenos docents and is co-sponsored by the City.

For more information contact Holly Starr at (310) 544-5260.

NOAH'S FOOTSTEPS

The sooner you learn of an approaching fire, the greater the chance you will be able to get you and your animals to safety. In addition, during fire season, you may want to make sure there is always someone at home or certainly notify your backup person of any periods of time that your animals will be left alone.

ADDITIONAL THINGS TO REMEMBER

► Approach your pets cautiously during and after a disaster

During and immediately after a natural disaster or emergency incident, pets, just like humans, experience a great deal of trauma, confusion and anxiety. In this state, your pet can become aggressive. Given a chance, they will try to get away and find a place where they feel safe. Use caution when approaching your pet and comfort him/her after the incident. Check your pet for injuries. Until you have more information, keep your pet confined in your yard or home or other safe location.

► Listen for information from authorities

Following a disaster like an earthquake, listen to local emergency broadcast radio stations for information on emergency shelters and holding areas for all your pets, including livestock and farm animals. During a major disaster, Los Angeles County's six Animal Shelters will be available for emergency housing of your pets.

PLAN FOR PEACE OF MIND

Planning can be the difference between a happy ending and sorrow following a disaster. It's important to first of all have a plan for the human members of your household. If you're disorganized, it will decrease your chances of being able to take care of yourself and your family, let alone your pets. Taking the time to create an emergency plan will give you peace of mind and help you and your animal companions to get through the rough times.

DISASTER SUPPLY CHECKLIST FOR PETS

Once you get your animals to a safe location you need to be prepared to care for them for at least three days, which is the average length of time it takes for relief supplies to start arriving in the area. A disaster supply kit will help you to do this.

The Humane Society of the United States offers pet owners a checklist to be prepared in case of an emergency. You should have a pet disaster kit readily accessible and stored in a sturdy container that can be easily carried. Although you should customize your kit depending on the types of pets you own, the following is a list of suggested items to help you get started:

- Any medications and pet medical records (in a waterproof container)
- A first aid kit and a pet first aid manual
- Leashes, harnesses and collars
- Current photos and descriptions of your pets to help others to identify them in case you become separated
- A 3 to 5 day supply of water and food for each pet, along with a manual can opener (if needed)
- Information on feeding schedules, medical conditions, behavior problems
- Name and number of your veterinarian
- Cat litter and litter box
- Clean up supplies, such as newspapers, paper towels, plastic bags, grooming items, flea/tick spray, disinfectant, blankets and towels
- Pet beds and toys to reduce stress (only if you can easily take them along)
- Keep your pets' vaccinations up-to-date and an identification tag on him/her at all times.

WILDFIRE HAZARDS

The use of 1-hour fire-rated materials for the exterior walls of homes – While stucco exteriors provide a 1-hour fire rating, there is no requirement in the City's Code for homes to be stuccoed. Homes may be constructed with wood siding, which would not provide a 1-hour fire rating.

The boxing-in of roof eaves – The City's Code does not require roof eaves to be boxed in, but this construction method can help to protect the roof from being ignited from below.

The screening of attic and eave vents – The City's Code does not require attic or eave vent screens, which can help prevent embers from entering the attic.

The use of non-combustible rain gutters, fences and garage doors – The City's Code does not currently require these exterior components to be non-combustible.

The use of dual-glazed windows and skylights – The State's Energy Code (Title 24) requires the use of dual-glazed windows in construction for energy conservation purposes, but not specifically for fire suppression purposes. However, all skylights must meet the same 'Class A' standards as other roof materials.

The maintenance of a minimum 100-foot brush clearance zone around structures - Although the City's Code does not require this, the Los Angeles County Fire Code (with which the City complies) does require such clearance in some circumstances, sometimes up to two hundred feet (200') from structures in extra-hazard areas.

For more information about these construction practices, please contact the City's Building and Safety Department at (310) 544-7702. The City's Planning Department has a copy of the Very High Fire Hazard Severity Zones map, which is available for review during City Hall office hours.

FREE CURBSIDE ELECTRONICS COLLECTION

Starting July 1st, both Waste Management and Universal Waste Systems will expand the collection of bulky item electronics at curbside. Previously, certain electronic items such as televisions and computer monitors could not be collected at curbside and had to be taken to a household hazardous waste roundup. That problem is now solved. Now, TV's, computer monitors, in addition to CPUs, VCR's, cellular phones, answering machines, radios and stereos will be collected at curbside. This service is in addition to previously accepted non- electronic bulky items such as mattresses, water heaters, sofas, tables, etc. Each customer gets up to 3 free bulky item pickups a year. Simply call Waste Management at (800) 774-0222 or (310) 830-7100 or UWS at (800) 631-7016 to arrange for a free pickup. Remember, bulky items get picked up with a different truck so you need to call ahead and schedule a pickup. Large bulky items left at the curb without prior scheduling will not be picked up. If you have backyard service, leave the item by your trash cans. Many of the obsolete and old electronics are taken to a recycling facility and recyclable components are removed and the balance is disposed of properly.

If you have items in good shape and re-usable, please first call a charitable organization such as Goodwill (562) 435-7741, Salvation Army (800) 958-7825, United Cancer Research Society (800) 443-4224, or St. Vincent de Paul (800) 974-3571. Not only will your unwanted items help a needy person or a good cause, but it will also help the City meet State mandates by reducing the trash going to landfills. It can also be tax deductible.

CHANGE IN WASTE MANAGEMENT HOLIDAY PICKUP SCHEDULE

In the past, Waste Management's trash collection was delayed by a day due to observed holidays. Beginning July 2005, Waste Management will service the City on all Monday holidays and there will be no collection delays during those holiday weeks. This affects all future Labor Days and Memorial Days. This should help reduce confusion due to various holidays that fall on Monday. Remember, trash and recycling on those Monday holiday weeks will not be delayed and everything will be collected during the week, just like a regular non-holiday week. The above change is only for Waste Management customers. Universal Waste Systems customers should check their holiday schedule inserted with their bills. As for Thanksgiving week, there will be no pickup on Thursday, Thanksgiving Day (this is for both Waste Management and Universal Waste customers). Thursday customers will be serviced on Friday, and Friday customers will be serviced on Saturday.
