

LA COUNTYWIDE PARKS NEEDS ASSESSMENT

RPV PUBLIC MEETING JANUARY 27TH

The County of Los Angeles is conducting an unprecedented County-wide study of park and recreation facilities. This historic assessment will both establish an existing inventory of recreation-related assets and parklands while also determining how to improve, expand and make recreation opportunities more accessible to the public.

Almost every city and district in LA County are conducting public workshops to explain the process and receive feedback from the local community. Learn about RPV's recently approved Parks Master Plan and be a part of the needs assessment process by attending RPV's public workshop.
