OVERVIEW

During the first quarter of operations (July – September 2016), numerous people have been warned, advised or cited regarding the Preserve rules and regulations. We have provided information to trail users on how to access resources from the City of Rancho Palos Verdes and Palos Verdes Peninsula Land Conservancy websites; including but not limited to trail maps, trails information, the preserve mission, etc.

Most, if not all of the violations appear to be from ignorance of the laws and the fact that the violators are inside of a wilderness preserve. Additionally, some violators (mostly residents) have been using the preserve lands since before they were preserves, and are committing acts that have only become violations within the past ten or fifteen years.

While maintaining the habitat in a natural state is important, it is equally important to provide preserve users with more visible guidelines to follow. This is important, not only to physically protect the preserve, but also to provide the users with a “black and white” law that has less “gray area” that is subject to the user’s personal and legal interpretation. Most of the preserve users contacted, including the above-indicated violators, want to enjoy the preserve, as well as, “Do what is right”.
